Halls Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Halls Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. HALL'S CATARRH CURE, 700, Toledo, Ohio. Sold by all Druggists. Take Halls Family Pills for constipation.

MOVE HENS FROM RANGE TO WINTER QUARTERS EARLY

Change the Pullets and Hens from Grass Pastures to Winter Quarters Soon Enough in the Fall so That the Fowl Will Be Thoroughly Acclimated to Their New Homes Before They Begin to Lay

Pullet love of home and contentment with simple surroundings, no matter how humble, make it advisable to transfer the prospective layers from the range to the winter quarters early enough in the fall that they will be thoroughly acclimated to their new quarters before they begin to lay. Many practical poultrymen neglect this precaution and maintain their birds under range conditions almost up to the beginning of cold weather with the consequence that egg laying is retarded and often jeopardized.

Acclimating Pullets to Winter Quarters. Timeliness—timeliness means to do today the job of today—is highly essential in the fall moving of the flock. The owner of exhibition fowls would never neglect to feed and condition his birds for the exhibition circuit. It is just as essential that the egg producing pullets be properly quartered for the winter season as early as possible consistent with the most progressive poultry management. This means to acclimate the pullets to their cold weather home before they begin to lay.

When pullets are moved to the winter quarters at the right time they soon become reconciled to their new surroundings and begin to lay without any interruption. On the other hand, if they are kept out on the range until they attain maturity, when they finally are moved to the cold weather houses their laying ability is so seriously checked that the birds do not produce any eggs for several weeks and in some instances do not lay again for some months.

Where the mature hens are to be confined closely all winter it is essential to provide 3 to 4 square feet of floor space for each bird, while fowls having free access to range all winter in a mild climate in addition to comfortable quarters need only about 1 1/2 to 3 square feet of floor space apiece. It is important to have all the roosts in the winter houses on the same level. Otherwise the birds will crowd to the high end positions to the extent that the weaker ones may be seriously injured, as the stronger birds are sure to gain possession of the desirable perches.

Disinfect Building Thoroughly. It is also essential, just before the pullets are quartered in their new location, to clean out and disinfect the buildings thoroughly and to provide plenty of clean, dry litter. The house should be scrubbed carefully as to floor and roof are weather proof, and the building is open sufficiently in front that it will not sweat from inadequate ventilation.

As a rule, the same ration that makes growth also produces plenty of eggs, so that it is not necessary to make much change in the pullet dietary at the approach of cold weather. It is worthy of special mention that the United States Department of Agriculture, at the Government experiment farm, Beltsville, Md., kept a number of hens for a period of over three years on a ration which contained no wheat, or wheat products and got good production. The Federal specialists have maintained the production in their flocks by the proper and scientific use of corn and oats in the ration, feeding two parts of cracked corn to one part of oats night and morning, while they used three parts of corn meal and one part of beef scraps as the scratch mixture kept before the hens at all times. Last year 30 hens fed in this manner, made an average of 144 eggs, while the same individual hens yielded over 200 eggs during the 12 months.

When the fall rains are on in full, every poultryman should be sure to protect the exposed end of his poultry house so that the rain can not beat in and wet the bedding and litter, as damp litter causes colds, roup, and other diseases.

MUST MARK WEIGHT

ON MEAT

Wrapped meats inclosed in paper or other material, including hams and bacon, coming within the jurisdiction of the Federal food and drugs act, must be labeled to show the net weight of each package, by the provisions of an amendment to that law incorporated in the Agricultural appropriation act for the current year.

The food and drugs act requires that the quantity of food in package form coming within its jurisdiction must be plainly and conspicuously marked on the outside of the package in terms of weight, measure, or numerical count. Wrapped hams and bacon previously were held not to be food in package form within the meaning of the act, since they are not of uniform size and are sold by the pound by actual weight and not by a fixed price for each package as are most foods in package form. Congress now has specifically definitely that from the date of the passage of the amendment, July 24, 1919, a statement of the net weight will be required on all wrapped meats, including hams and bacon, coming within the jurisdiction of the Federal food and drugs act.

WHAT SOME WOMEN NEVER LEARN

By Ruth Cameron

A great many married women learn very early in the game the gentle art of husband managing.

Quite as many women never learn the art at all. Indeed it is astonishing how many women there are who think they have good brain capacity and who would never question their own ability to run a business, or learn a profession, and yet do not manage in a lifetime of opportunity to learn the ins and outs of one man's character.

Among my acquaintances is a well educated, charming woman who has been married about ten years. Her husband is a splendid man but an incorrigible tease. Although he loves his wife dearly he spends a great deal of time and effort in trying to—as he elegantly puts it—"get her goat." I said "a great deal of effort." I take that back. It requires scarcely any effort at all. So little indeed that I rather wonder it still remains a sport to him. His methods are so obvious that everyone else in the company knows that he is only teasing her, but she always takes it as literally and as seriously as if she had never had any experience with his ways before. Being a serious minded person, the teasing troubles her greatly. To stop it, all she has to do is to learn when he is trying to tease her, and not be teased. And she has not been able to do that in ten years. Everyone in the company understands that man—except the one person who has had the most opportunity to study him.

Women who never learn that certain little tricks and habits of theirs irritate and antagonize their husbands are another class which it is difficult to understand. I know of a pathetic little woman who is grieving her heart out because she thinks her husband does not care as much for her as he used to. And yet she keeps on saying and doing certain little things which a child could see irritates him. She interrupts him when he is trying to tell a story; she contradicts him about little details; she asks him questions about his private affairs in public, etc., etc.

Other women make the fatal mistake of weakening their powers of protest by nagging about matters which they cannot ever change, and in their hearts know that they cannot ever change. When they want to protest about some important matter, some matter in which their husbands might really have been influenced by them, the force of their protest is gone.

To study the time of day, the condition and the mood in which a man is most approachable is the A, B, C of wifely diplomacy. And yet there actually are women who never learn these details, and who broach difficult subjects to their husbands before breakfast or at some other unpropitious moment, and then wonder that the interview goes badly.

Wifely diplomacy is an interesting study for any married woman. No woman who has not mastered this course deserves a diploma as a finished student in the great art of home making.

A young housekeeper, venturing on her first preserving, may like to know that:

MOTHER AND CHILDREN GRATEFUL

In East Boston, Mass., at 23 Lamson Street, a contented family of three children and the mother live, daily thanking in silence the kind neighbor who helped them when they were sick. Mrs. Nellie Woodford is the mother and she writes the following letter to Dr. J. F. True & Co.: "Having heard about your medicine from my neighbors and friends, I wondered if your Dr. True's Elixir wasn't what I needed. I am a hard-working woman, working six hours every day for the Penn Realty Trust Company in Boston. In doing this work I have a lot of strength. Besides this looking after my house and the care of my three children were no out. I guess my nerves got out of order. I worried a lot, and seemed to get tired easy. I lost my appetite. I was overworked with dizzy spells, my eyes got blurred, and I soon found I had to stay home from work. I didn't do any housework, but the rest didn't do any good."

"I always had one special doctor for myself and the children, but he was out of town when I was sick. I took medicine from the druggist which my friends brought in, but nothing did any good. My bowels were out of order. My breath bad, and I was shaky all over. Worst of all the terrible headache came. It seemed I had suffered years before your Dr. True's Elixir was brought in to me by a neighbor."

"After a short time I began to cheer up and he myself again. My bowels were soon in order and I noticed that the dizzy spells had left me. I think your Elixir wonderful. I am working every day now getting stronger and pickling up my appetite. I feel full of gratitude toward Dr. True's Elixir. The children sometimes eat things which don't agree with them, when I am not around to see, and then cramps my bottle of Dr. True's Elixir and find no trouble in getting them to take some. It is easy to take. Their bowels are soon all right. It may interest you to know that recently my youngest child was terribly sick and it was a serious case. We all have your Elixir to thank for relieving her of stomach worms. When I gave it to Louise it acted like magic, and fixed her up only after two doses." Signs of worms are: Constipation, hardened full belly, swollen upper lip, sour stomach, offensive breath, and occasional pains, pale face of leaden tint, heavy and dull, twitching eyelids, itching of the nostrils, and short dry coughs, grinding of the teeth, little red points sticking out on the tongue, starting during sleep, slow fever. If your children show any of these symptoms, start giving Dr. True's Elixir. The Elixir is a Laxative and Worm Expeller at once. It has done wonders for children and grownups since 1851. Proof that Some Women do Avoid Operations

Mrs. Etta Dorion, of Ogdensburg, Wis., says:

"I suffered from female troubles which caused piercing pains like a knife through my back and side. I finally lost all my strength so I had to go to bed. The doctor advised an operation but I would not listen to it. I thought of what I had read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and tried it. The first bottle brought great relief and six bottles have entirely cured me. All women who have female trouble of any kind should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

How Mrs. Boyd Avoided an Operation.

It relieved me from my troubles so I can do my house work without any difficulty. I advise any woman who is afflicted with female troubles to give Lydia E. PAPER FROM COTTON HULLS

As a result of experiments conducted by the Forest Products Laboratory, United States Department of Agriculture, a good grade of paper is being produced in commercial quantities from cotton-hull fiber. Pulp made from second-cut cotton linters and hull fiber, the forest specialists say, is well suited for the manufacture of book, writing, printing, blotting, cover, and other high grades of paper, and is equal in quality to the highest grades of paper stock.

WORDS FROM HOME

Statements That May Be Investigated. Testimony of Bethel Citizens.

When a Bethel citizen comes to the front, telling his friends and neighbors of his experience, you can rely on his sincerity. The statements of people residing in far away places do not command your confidence. Home endorsement is the kind that backs Doan's Kidney Pills. Such testimony is convincing. Investigation proves it true. Below is a statement of a Bethel resident. No stronger proof of merit can be had.

C. H. Heath, carpenter, High St., says: "I suffered terribly from backache, headaches, dizzy spells and my kidneys acted too frequently. I got Doan's Kidney Pills at Bossmann's Drug Store and in a few weeks I was entirely cured." (Statement given July 20, 1911.)

On June 8, 1916, Mr. Heath said: "I am still a firm believer in Doan's Kidney Pills. I use them as I feel in need of them and they always bring excellent results."

Price 60¢ at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the one that Mr. Heath had. Foster-McMillan Co., Mfgs., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

The six days entertainment of the Redpath Chautauque closed on Tuesday evening of this week, after a most successful course of lectures, dramas, opera, etc. The contract is now all signed by its 89 guarantors, so that a six days course for 1920 is an assured thing. The performance of "Pinafore" on Friday evening, with Miss Mildred Shaw as leading lady was a very large number, and much enjoyed by the great number present. Miss Shaw is well acquainted with many Rumford people, being a native of Buckfield, Maine, and her appearance on Friday evening was most pleasing and satisfying to her many friends. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman's lecture on Saturday morning was one of the gems of the Chautauque course, he taking for his subject "A Re-created World." On Monday Prof. Ralph B. Dennis of Northwestern University of Evanston, Ill., presented the plain facts in regard to Russia and the Bolsheviks in the afternoon, while in the evening the play "It Pays to Advance" drew a large crowd who were merely entertained by funny happenings of this bright and witty drama. On Tuesday, the closing performance was given by H. L. Fogleman, known as Gattling-gun Fogleman, who addressed the men in the afternoon on the principal requirements of good salesmanship, while in the evening a great treat was the interesting and scientific lecture and demonstration given by Monteville Wood, maker of more than 200 remarkable inventions. This was accompanied by numerous models and pictures, all of which was most instructive.

The Labor Day celebration, which had been looked to for many weeks, proved quite successful, a very good parade in the morning, upon the arrival of a special train at 9:30 A. M. beginning the festivities of the day. The Rumford band, Dixfield band and Livermore Falls band were in line at various intervals of the parade, a large number of the local organizations, as well as many from out of town, making a good showing as they passed along. The floats from the various mills, etc. were most attractive, the judges giving the first prize to the International mill float, which represented the Allied Nations, the second prize to the Continental paper bag mill, and the third prize to the Red Cross float. The parade marched over to the flats, where games and festivities of various kinds were indulged in. In the evening the gala day was brought to a happy close by a ball in Municipal Hall, at which there was a large attendance.
